Villa Romsdalen

After the bombing of Åndalsnes in 1940, Villa Romsdalen rose as the first house from the ashes. The villa is a prominent example of reconstruction architecture and was created by architect Helge B. Thams for the local factory owner Oscar Kolflåth. The director's residence was built to the highest standards of the time, using bricks from the local brickworks in Åndalsnes and featuring large, colorful stained glass windows. The historic walls have now been given new life, filled with the best from skilled local suppliers.

Martin Sebastian Bruseth and Hanne Karin Høgset bought the property in 2023 along with their three children. A year later, the distinctive villa was fully renovated and now proudly stands in the heart of Åndalsnes. Villa Romsdalen has five unique bedrooms that can accommodate a total of ten people. Each room has its own color scheme and unique character.

Juvet Landscape Hotel

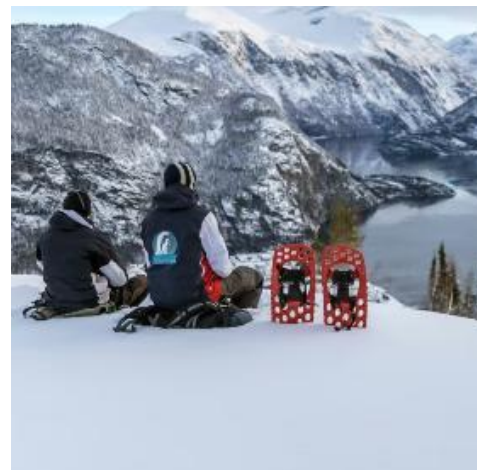

Juvet Landscape Hotel – a synthesis of raw Norwegian nature, cultural history and modern architecture.

The first landscape hotel in Europe is situated in the farmstead of Burtigarden farm at Alstad in Valldal, on a steep, natural levee amongst birch, aspen, pine and age-old boulders. In this little village in rural Norway, modern architecture encounters the natural and cultural landscape – and shows that the modern and innovative can go hand in hand with local building traditions and good, old-fashioned craftsmanship.

The hotel consists of nine detached rooms that are sited separately, each with a unique perspective on the rugged landscape. In addition, there is the opportunity to stay in the old buildings on the farm – the mill house, the barn and the authentically restored farmhouse – while meals are served communally in the old barn.
